

the dog walking diaries pdf

lived among, walking can be done to get from point A to point B or for exercise, both of which require maximum possible speed. A dog doesn't like that kind of walking; a dog likes to stick her nose under bushes, or peer around a corner, or stop and stare at a neighborhood cat lolling under a car. Walking the dog is meditative.

Dog Walking Diaries: thoughts on a work in progress

The Whole Dog Journal just published a handy article on stuff you should know about hiring a dog walker. Since anyone can call themselves a dog walker (just like anyone can call themselves a dog trainer), you gotta know how to pick a qualified person if you're going to hire one. WDJ recommends asking smart questions, such as:
